| @wxl, Ok, I'll try that :) @wxl, Oh! It's working :) @wxl, ð☐☐☐ @wxl, Is there a way to easily make this happen with 'right click' on a package in the update manager? @acheronuk, Look at!changelogs, btw Hey folks 'lo BluesKaj hi wxl Fili4: have you tested your sound connection by connecting a laptop sound device to the HDMI port and playing sounds through it? Does the speaker/headphone jack work fine? I have not done that.. lemme go try TJ-: the speaker works fine.. but no headphone jack TJ-: I have made sure the headunit is connected on my laptop.. @acheronuk: you have to upgrade to sosv3.20? Fili4: right, I was just wondering if there was a poor connection on the HDMI, the RCA, or the jack on the head unit itself Fili4: check the output from "amixer" and pastebin the result wxl: no wxl: when there is a new kernel, I usually only get the ISO, don't even test packages, until after it is released i'm curious what's going on there. oh that's cool so you just get the iso? @acheronuk: am I missing something? wxl: a clear guide on how to upgrade to that release is somewhere on the ubuntu blog wxl: I don't have an upgrade enabled in the iso 82157476af
